First impression

The box is smaller and lighter than expected. The sewing machine is also lighter than expected. A little briefcase or backpack with documents and a laptop is already heavier. Slightly heavier than the average handbag of a lady. So it fits somewhere in between.

The sewing machine looks sober. For a techie who loves buttons, technical gadgets, and flashing or even luminous lights, this may be a disappointment. For a seamstress who loves simplicity, clarity and no unnecessary frills, the machine looks perfect.

The machine is made of hard plastic (not metal). This is probably to limit the weight and to avoid an old-fashioned look. The shape has many curves and no sharp corners. This makes the machine look friendly, feminine and, above all, easy to use.

The machine is firm/steady on the table. The bottom is spacious and heavier. This prevents the machine from becoming top heavy (as is sometimes the case with machines) and unstable. Because of this, the sewing machine will not start to walking during sewing.

Let's get to work!

1. The cover and the manual:

The supplied cover (plastic cover) is made of simple plastic. Ideal to quickly cover the sewing machine against dust. However, the cover is not very beautiful. Time to make one!

The manual is a booklet in A5 horizontal format. Ideal for browsing and special enough: the exact size of sewing patterns. Easy to store with all sewing patterns and so the chance of losing the manual will be small.

2. Preparation:

The manual teaches me that the presserfoot-lever can be changed by adjusting the button on top of the sewing machine with a coin. This would be a big advantage if you like to work with very thick or very thin fabrics.

The lighting is good. The light bulb appears clear and focused. The light can be easily replaced yourself. This is described in the manual.

3. Wind up the spool and thread:

The manual is clear, even for a beginner. Just follow the arrows when threading the thread. If you still do not understand, there is a handy link for an instructional video:

4. Automatic needle threader:

A gift for every seamstress who has shaking hands or is ready for reading glasses!

5. Sewing:

Sewing is smooth and delicious. The thread tension is set correctly. Always stay away from this as much as possible.

The noise from the engine is normal to loud. In addition, the sewing machine makes a "stamping" sound. You can easily solve this "problem" by placing a thick felt mat or a mat of sound-damping material under the sewing machine. After we had put the sewing machine on a sound-damping mat, the pounding sound was corrected.

The reverse button is easy to operate.

The stitches are limited to the most necessary. More than enough to deliver good sewing. Decorative stitches and embroidery stitches are available to a limited extent. Quilting (with a handy tool the quilt stitch guide!), patchwork and basic embroidery are all possible, but this sewing machine is not specialized for these function.

The stitches for elastic fabrics such as jersey, jersey or fabrics with length or width stretch are fine. Note: using a stretch needle is very important. This is not mentioned in the manual.

The buttonholes can be made in three steps. Great result. Make sure that the needle is raised every time (and not in the fabric!) When you turn the stitch selection dial to the next step. Otherwise the needle breaks. This is not indicated in the manual.

Maintenance

The manual contains tips for maintenance and trouble-shooting in the event of problems. The supplier's website also contains a few links with tips for maintenance.

OUR CONCLUSION

The Matrimatic Jubilee 4 is a simple, lightweight sewing machine. The sewing machine is ideal, for example, to take to sewing lessons or when traveling. The sewing machine is light enough to be transported in a large weekend bag or a shopping cart.

The Matrimatic has limited options in terms of stitches and extra accessories. This is not necessary for a beginner seamstress and this sewing machine basically has enough to learn the business or craft.

An extra sound-damping mat under the sewing machine is recommended and a nicer cover to put over it, after use, is certainly also recommended.

If you have a sewing studio and, for example, start giving sewing lessons, this sewing machine is a great choice. A long table with a multiple of these sewing machines will look very professional. These basic sewing machines are pleasant to use for beginners seamstresses and offer sufficient opportunities to learn the craft.

From 5 pieces, the price is negotiable on request.

The price is no more than a brand item of clothing. For this price you will get a great sewing machine that runs nicely above expectations. The four-leaf clover as a symbol on the sewing machine is your luck!
